Course Description: This is the capstone course to finish your biology major; we will touch the breadth of life science. You can expect to review different aspects of your prior coursework and learn new information. Ultimately, this class should leave you with a sense of the purpose of your college education. This course appraises students' ability independently research current topics in biological science. Students are expected to competently present "state of the art" information in both oral and written formats.

Assessment: Biology 4900 is graded on an S/U (Pass/Fail) basis. You must complete, and receive a passing grade of at least 70% in, the following activities:

A) Assignments associated with the production of a well-
